What is Augmedix?

Augmedix is a technology used by your physician to document your healthcare visit.

It uses a Smartphone.

How does Augmedix work?

Your physician will use Augmedix to share a secure audio-visual stream of your visit with your physician's assistant. This assistant will update your electronic medical record in real time and assist your physician throughout your visit.

Where is the physician's assistant located?

The assistant is located at a secure, offsite location.

How does Augmedix benefit me?

During a typical office visit, your physician must enter notes and other information into a computer to update your medical record. Augmedix frees your physician from computer data entry during your visit, meaning you get more focused attention and more time to discuss your concerns with your physician.

What happens to the video that is shared with the physician's assistant?

The audio/visual stream is encrypted and stored securely by Augmedix in accordance with HIPAA guidelines. We use the stream of your visit for better medical care delivery, improved medical documentation, and quality assurance.

If you have any other questions, please speak with one of our clinical staff.

The consent is valid from the date I sign, for this and all future visits.

Please check mark your decision below. Your decision will not change your care, and you may change your mind at any time during your visit.

YES I consent to using Augmedix during my office visit

NO I do not consent to using Augmedix during my office visit
